Stock Market Is Impatient While Expecting Decision in the Coal Trust Case.

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

New York, Feb. 13.—Wall street would have had an exciting stock market to lay if the Supretue Court of the United States and rendered a decision in the real real of the court of the United States had not remon for design struct cases during hundress hours. But it did not, and therefore the trader had not remon for design struct cases during hundress hours. But it did not, and therefore the trader had no remon for design structures and resident had been shout a point, and in the afternoon code of again, put it up again, and said t another time. Just at the close Reads are well rether to the first had a notice that the Suprem Court would render the decision in the sizest had a notion that the Suprem Court would render the decision in the said case later in the day. Most of the big traders of the street had a notion that the Suprem Court would render the decision in the said case later in the day. Most of the big traders of the street had a continuent would be a finished the provenuent would be a spinion seamed to be that a decision, the street had not been substitud. In the event of a decision, the best spinion seamed to be that a decision, substitud. In the event of a scholar of the street had not been substituded in the event of a scholar of the substituded in the event of the street would be a finished the provenuent would be a finished the provenuent would be a finished the substitution of the late own, because present to had its own, because present to had its own because present to the late own because for the street would be continued. Decision, but the controlled by the Reading, would force a dischair, the substitution of Reading placed it at door 200.

Appoint seems of the street was favorably resident the substitution and substitution of Reading placed it at door 200.
